

Full professorship for Bernhard Truffer

August 3, 2014 |

Bernhard Truffer, Head of the Department of Environmental Social Sciences, has held the professorship "Geography of Transitions in Urban Infrastructures" at the Faculty of Earth Sciences at Utrecht University since the beginning of August 2014.

The professorship is combined with a part-time position in Utrecht. At the same time, he remains employed as a researcher and head of department at Eawag. Bernhard Truffer's research interests are technological innovation systems and transition processes, especially in infrastructure planning. Bernhard has repeatedly received awards from international bodies for his research work. Only recently he was awarded the IAMOT Research Publication Award for his numerous publications in the field of technology management.
